JEWISH TAG DAY

London, Jan. 27, 2.55 p. m.—Murad of Sivas, Armenian leader of the province of Sivas, Asia Minor, in an interview just received here from Tiffis, gives an account of the treatment by the Turks of the Armenian people in Asia Minor in which are many details. Murad, who is a well known warrior, fought his way out of Sivas, reaching Tiffis in December. His story, which is made public by Viscount Bryce, who vouches for the reliability of the source, is in substance as follows:

"Out of 160,000 Armenians inhabiting the province of Sivas, there remained when Murad left only some 10,000, who had been spared either as useful artisans or because they were old. The remaining people, Murad declared, were either massacred directly or deported to the fire abetween the Euphrates river and northern Mesopotamia.

For disarming the Armenians, the Turks, according to Murad, employed various methods of torture. In Khourakhon, he declares, one man was actu-

WANT HEARING HELD IN NEW ENGLAND

When Question of Dissolution of Railroad and Steamship Companies Comes Up.

The get-together convention of the Eastern Connecticut Development committee, the New London County Improvement league and the New London Chamber of Commerce which opened at the Crocker house at New London Thursday afternoon drew an attendance of more than 50 and proved to be of a highly interesting and instructive character. Prior to the and instructive character. Prior to the luncheon, which was served at 12.30, a business meeting of the Eastern Connectincut Development committee was held. At this session a resolution was passed asking that the hearing to was held. At this session a resolution was passed asking that the hearing to be given by the interstate commerce commission to the opponents of dissolution of railroads and steamship companies be held in New London, if possible: or at least in some New England city. The chambers of commerce of Eastern Connecticut have already placed themfselves on record as opposed to such dissolution.

Another resolution was also adopted in the form of a petition to the National Chamber of Commerce at Washington, D. C., asking that the national body exercise its efforts in creating more ports of call for trans-Atlantic steamships, instead of having them largely confined to New York and Boston as at present. Other business of a routine character was transacted. Chairman J. T. Cruttenden of the Eastern Connecticut Development committee extended a welcome to the funcheon, in place of President E. D. Steele of the chamber of commerce, whe was unable to be present. During the servingent the appetizing menu the hotel orchestra rendered an excellent program.
